

LATER NEWS OF TITANIC DISASTER DEPRESSING

STEAMER PARISIAN AND VIRGINIAN DID NOT PICK UP ANY OF SURVIVORS

Atmospheric Conditions Hinder Messages From Carpathia That Might Give Up Secret of Death List Meager Dispatches Force Conclusion That Men of World-Wide Prominence and Those of Lesser Fame Went Bravely to Common Grave

That the final roll of those rescued from the Titanic disaster practically had been made up, was the impression that grew almost into conviction last night as the hours wore on without the revision of lists adding measurably to the total of known survivors.

Of definite news of the disaster the night added little. Down the Atlantic coast, fog enveloped in many places as the reports showed, crept the Cunarder Carpathia bearing the 866 lives that had been snatched from the waters when the Titanic's boats laden to the limit, one by one made their way from the giant liner as it became known that she was soon to take her fatal plunge.

But although the rescue ship was reported within wireless range of the Sable Island station at a comparatively early hour and every wireless ear was waiting to catch the snap of a receiver which might mean that the great secret of the liner's death list was about to be given up, midnight came and went and the night began to grow old—and still the word had not been spoken.

Carefully compiling the available lists, the record of the named survivors of the disaster stands significantly thus: Men, 79; women, 233; children, 16. Total, 328.

Of the remaining 540 known survivors it is estimated that not more than 100 were seamen required to man the boats. This would leave approximately 440, and in the ordinary proportions of women and children in the stowage where the passengers in the Titanic's cars numbered 710, it seems probable that the greater part of these 440 were women and their little ones.

Nothing could show more plainly the heroism of the crew and the men passengers who stood by the doomed ship facing inevitable death and sent the women and children away in the lifeboats. Some would have to be left that was a certainty. Hundreds in fact were left. But to all appearances the men who were left stayed behind bravely, calmly stepping aside to let the weaker ones those to whom they owed protection, to take their way to safety.

Final Message Shows Heroism.
Sinking by the head. Have cleared boats and filled them with women and children.

This was the final message these brave men sent the world for it was shortly afterward that their wireless signals sputtered and then stopped altogether.

The picture that inevitably presents itself in view of what is known is of one like John Jacob Astor, master of one of the famous family of bankers, and Strang, a merchant prince, William T. Stead, veteran journalist, and Archibald W. Butt, soldier, Washington, looking on, standing gallantly side by side, place he otherwise might have been taken by some of the men, shawl enshrouded ill-

Atlantic Steamship Companies to Abandon Dangerous Route

NEW YORK, April 16.—At 5 o'clock this afternoon, Vice President Franklin D. Roosevelt said that the Atlantic Steamship Companies were abandoning the dangerous route in the North Atlantic as long as the weather was so bad.

A dispatch from Montreal reporting that the Parisian might have saved some of the Titanic's survivors, Mr. Franklin said that in his opinion neither the Parisian nor the Virginian has any survivors aboard.

The Titanic was insured for $5,000,000, Mr. Franklin said. On the ship, he said, the White Star line would lose about $2,000,000. This will be the largest part of loss, he added.

President Taft late this afternoon, ordered the secretary of the navy to order the scout cruisers Salem and Chester to the scene from Hampton Roads to meet the Carpathia and to bring back to the government a list of the Titanic survivors.

The Carpathia was caught by wireless

PITIFUL SCENE AT SHIPPING OFFICE

Thousands of Anxious Persons Besiege Place for News of Loved Ones

CLASS BARRIERS REMOVED

Fashionable Women Mingle With Those From Bowery Scanning Bulletins

NEW YORK, April 16.—We are waiting for a complete list of the names of the survivors and until this is received, we can give no definite information.

This was the only answer that could be given today at the White Star offices here to the thousands of anxious persons who gathered there seeking information regarding relatives and friends who were on the Titanic.

From early morning until late tonight, pathetic scenes were witnessed in lower Broadway and in Bowling Green park opposite the steamship offices. Hundreds of inquiries were received also by long distance telephone.

Many remained in the vicinity of Bowling Green park throughout the day, hoping against hope that some wireless dispatch would be received, announcing that their loved ones were included among the survivors on board the Carpathia, which is now speeding to New York with the passengers who were rescued from the lifeboats after the Titanic sank.

Clerks in the White Star offices were kept busy informing those seeking news that no information has been received either from the Carpathia or the Olympic. The incomplete list of survivors was posted at the entrance of the White Star offices.

Could Only Hope for Best.
Those who tried to find the names of their kin or friends in this list could only hope that when the complete roster of the rescued is received, it would bring welcome news.

When word reached the offices of men and women crowded in the narrow corridors of the offices that Vice President Franklin of the International Mercantile Marine company had announced that he was confident that the Virginian and the Parisian of the Allan line had none of the Titanic's passengers on board, an atmosphere of deep depression prevailed.

The inquirers, who could not believe that the White Star officers were giving out all the news of the disaster in his private office throughout the day, and few persons were permitted to see him.

Mrs. Guggenheim Hysterical.
Mrs. Benjamin Guggenheim, wife of the smaller millionaire, was one of the first visitors in the morning. When informed that no word had been received of her husband she became hysterical.

"Is there something that can be done?" she pleaded. "Can you send steamships out to search for lifeboats which may be afloat?"

She was told that every steamship within the zone of wireless had been requested to give assistance. After she had been assured that she would be notified by telephone as soon as any word came from the Carpathia, or the Olympic, Mrs. Guggenheim was

MESSAGES OF SYMPATHY FROM ROYAL PERSONAGES

LONDON, April 16.—King George has sent the following message to the White Star company:

"The queen and I are horrified at the appalling disaster which has happened to the Titanic and at the terrible loss of life. We deeply sympathize with the bereaved relatives and feel for their great sorrow. With all our hearts—George R. and I."

The queen mother Alexandra has sent a message of sympathy to the company, in which she says:

"It is with feelings of the deepest sorrow that I hear of the terrible disaster to the Titanic and of the awful loss of life. My heart is full of grief and sympathy for the bereaved families of those who have perished."

Ottawa, Ont., April 16.—The following message was sent this afternoon on behalf of his royal highness, the Duke of Connaught, to the owners of the Titanic:

"The White Star company, Broadway, New York: I am desired by his royal highness, the governor general of Canada, to send you the following: 'I desire to express through the owners of the Titanic my very deep and heartfelt sympathy with the relatives and friends of all those who lost their lives in this terrible catastrophe. Lieutenant Colonel Lowth, Military Secretary.'

OROZCO WILLING TO RESPECT U. S. REBEL LEADER CHANGES HIS ATTITUDE

Consul Letcher Puts Five Propositions to Which Mexican Can Agree

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico, April 16.—Gen. Pascual Orozco today performed a complete right-about-face in the matter of his attitude toward the United States Consul Letcher.

The consul spent an hour and a half with the rebel leader and presented the state department's propositions that American lives and property must be safeguarded and that Mr. Letcher must be allowed to exercise his consular functions in dealing with the rebels.

Orozco said that his previous attitude toward the consul was due to misinformation brought to him by underlings and he greatly regretted that consular mail had been refused with the agreement to the following propositions put to him by Mr. Letcher:

"The consul must not be further embarrassed by personal or official espionage. Telegrams to officials in official business, whether in public or otherwise, must not be subjected to unnecessary delay."

The consul has the right to personal conference with the rebel commander at any hour. Will must not be tampered with or delayed.

Americans are guaranteed the right of immediate appeal to their consul in matters what the charge against them and the consul may visit them in person.

No Reply From Madero.
MEXICO CITY, April 16.—No reply to the American state department note calling on Madero to respect the lives of Americans in Mexico had been made by the president or his foreign relations at a late hour tonight.

The note was taken by President Madero and his ministers at a special cabinet meeting. At the conclusion of the meeting it was said that the president's office statement would be given to the newspaper later.

President Madero was quoted by the press as saying that in his judgment the note could not be considered as a "prelude of intervention," and as a foundation for his belief that the president's office statement would be given to the newspaper later.

The note was taken by President Madero and his ministers at a special cabinet meeting. At the conclusion of the meeting it was said that the president's office statement would be given to the newspaper later.

Late tonight, Minister Lascruar sent word to the press representatives that he was too busy to receive them, only two Mexican papers printed editorial comments.

Newspaper Warns Revolutionists.
Discussing Assistant Secretary Wilson's point warning to President Madero and General Orozco El Pais the official Catholic organ said today that the revolutionists.

"This is the first flash of lightning. Be assured that the columns of the north will not make the government responsible, but the Mexican people, for any attempt against the rights, interests or lives of foreigners. It is not a moment to discuss the legality of such action on the part of the United States the lightning is not discussed. Be sure that if you don't respect the lives and interests you will be considered as assassins of the fatherland."

La Prensa characterized the diplomatic note as "bitter, discourteous and impertinent."

The note is called "impertinent" since in the conception of the editor of the paper international law requires a nation to give protection to aliens only so far as it is able, and does not lay it open to any claims for damage to life or property which it willingly would protect but cannot.

In summing up the action of the American government, La Prensa brands it as despotic and overbearing.

NO SURVIVORS ON OTHER SHIPS

Marconigrams Show That Carpathia Was Only Steamer at Scene in Time

REPORT FROM THE OLYMPIC

Bears Out Estimate of Number Saved Wireless Operators Are Overworked

CAPE HAIT, N. F. April 16.—A wireless message brought from Captain Paddock of the steamship Olympic, which was the only ship at the scene of the disaster, is as follows:

Please relay to the Atlantic Cable Company the following message: "The Olympic has no survivors on board. The only survivors are on the Carpathia. The second third, fourth and fifth officers and the second Marconi operator are the only officers reported saved."

MONTREAL, April 16.—The statement that neither the steamer Parisian nor the Virginian succeeded in rescuing any of the Titanic's passengers, was made tonight by George Hannan, general passenger agent of the Allan line.

"It is believed," Mr. Hannan said, "the Titanic sank more rapidly than those on board had expected she would, and the work of loading the boats and getting the passengers over the side had not been completed when the final plunge occurred."

HALIFAX, N. S., April 16.—In reply to a dispatch sent by the Halifax manager of the Allan line, Captain Hannan of the steamer Parisian sent the following by wireless:

"I have no survivors of the Titanic on board, and no official information as to the fate of the ship. Expect to reach Halifax early tomorrow morning."

Olympic Sends Report.
ON BOARD THE STEAMSHIP OLYMPIC AT SEA, April 16.—The Olympic received news at midnight Sunday that the Titanic had struck ice. She started immediately for the scene, but resumed her course eastward at 5 o'clock in the morning, upon hearing that the Titanic had sunk at 2 o'clock.

The only details known by the Olympic are that 679 persons were saved, mostly women and children. All the crew except those manning the boats are believed to have been lost, including the principal officers.

This dispatch was sent to the Associated Press by London. A dispatch from New York, a passenger on the Olympic and is the first word received concerning the disaster from any one outside of official sources. It will be noted that the number of survivors is practically identical with the original dispatch. Later dispatches however indicated that 865 persons were saved.

Great Battle for News.
HALIFAX, April 16.—Sable Island so long the terror of transatlantic travel, is tonight through the agency of the wireless, the scene of a great battle for news of the missing passengers and crew of the Titanic.

The wireless station on the lonely sand-dune island planted in the Atlantic 120 miles southeast of Halifax, has made the island known as the graveyard of the Atlantic the radiating center of news which comes from the scene.

FEDERAL INVESTIGATION MAY BE MADE; SEVERAL RESOLUTIONS IN HOUSE

All Official Washington Preparing for Steps to Minimize Possibilities Another Tragedy President Confers With Cabinet Regarding Government Control of Wireless.

Searching Inquiry, Provision for Life-Saving Apparatus, Etc., Among Action Proposed

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Stirred by the horror of the Titanic disaster, all official Washington today was preparing for steps to minimize the possibilities of another such tragedy.

Congress began framing legislation to govern life-saving appliances and wireless, and President Taft, doubly touched by the probable loss of his military aide, Major Archibald Butt, held conferences with cabinet officers to consider government control over the operation of wireless.

In the house what may result in a federal investigation into the causes of the wreck and the enactment of protective measures was begun with resolutions offered by Representatives Mott and Hardwick. The Mott resolution provides for a searching inquiry by the merchant marine committee. The Hardwick resolution provides for life-saving apparatus. Under the Mott resolution the merchant marine committee would sit as a court and compel the attendance of witnesses.

Chairman Alexander of the committee said today that the catastrophe would stop the building of such enormous vessels. He favors limitation by law on the sizes of vessels which visit American ports. The committee also expects to report a bill to regulate wireless.

President Taft was in conference nearly two hours with his cabinet officers, whose functions cover the operations of this new system of telegraphy. Those present were Secretaries Stimson, Meyer and Nagel. Attorney General Wickersham was called in to give legal advice as to the necessities in a legislative way of additional laws.

In recognition of the extensive interests of private corporations which have spent much in the equipment of ships and shore stations with wireless outfits, ex-Attorney General Griggs and Mr. Sheffield, representing the Marconi company, also were consulted, while the technical side of the question was developed by Admiral Clegg, engineer in chief of the navy, whose bureau is charged with the navigation of naval wireless systems.

The discussions were general and touched particularly on a new bill which probably will be prepared in the navy department to give effect to the requirements of the general wireless telegraphic convention to which America recently has adhered.

Lord Burnham cabled to President Taft today expressing sympathy with the proprietors of the London Daily Telegraph, for the terrible loss of so many prominent and distinguished citizens, and the appalling catastrophe which has befallen the Titanic.

By direction of the president, Acting Secretary Huntington Wilson of the state department sent a message in reply extending mutual sympathy.

The house adopted a resolution expressing condolence to the relatives of those who lost their lives on the Titanic. This resolution, offered by Representative Austin of Tennessee, follows:

Resolved, That this house has heard with profound regret and sorrow of the appalling loss of life on the steamship Titanic, and express its deep sympathy for the relatives of those who perished in that great disaster.

WRECKED VESSEL HAD KNOWN EDGE OF THE ICE

NEW YORK, April 16.—What is believed to be one of the last messages sent from the Titanic before she struck the iceberg, was received at the Hydrographic office in Washington on April 14, the day preceding the night on which the collision occurred according to advices received here tonight. The message is given below:

"April 14, German Steamer America reported by Radio-Telegraph passing two large icebergs in latitude 41.2, longitude 50.0. The message indicates that the Titanic had knowledge of ice in the vicinity as her position when she struck was latitude 41.46, longitude 50.14."

CANCEL SOCIAL AFFAIRS

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Practically every formal social affair on the diplomatic calendar in Washington has been canceled because of the Titanic disaster.

Resolved, That this house has heard with profound regret and sorrow of the appalling loss of life on the steamship Titanic, and express its deep sympathy for the relatives of those who perished in that great disaster.

HEN AND NEST CARRIED QUARTER OF MILE BY WIND

GREELEY, Colo., April 16—Of the many freaks played by the wind, that Saturday which lifted the nest of a setting hen, made in an empty parker box, and deposited it, hen and eggs, on the top of a rural mail delivery box, a quarter of a mile away was the strangest.

IS NOT CONTENT TO TRUST POLITICIANS

BOSTON, Ia. April 16—"I think we are going to win the fight this year," said Colonel Roosevelt today, "but if we don't, we are in for three years of the war."

The colonel made this declaration in one of a dozen speeches which he delivered today. He spent the day on the way to Nebraska, where he is to begin a two days campaign tomorrow.

Although Colonel Roosevelt had expected to make no speeches today, crowds were waiting to see him at a number of places in Illinois and Iowa. "I wish you had a presidential primary in Iowa as they have in Illinois and Pennsylvania," he said to a crowd at Burlington, Ia. "I am more than content to put my case before the people and trust to their decision. But I am not content to put my case before the politicians and trust to their decision, as they are the people I intend to move against."

Another Charge From Taft.

WASHINGTON, April 16—The Taft national bureau issued today a statement to part as follows:

"In the far west many instances have been called to the attention of President Taft's managers where Gifford Pinchot has demanded of his own personal appointees in the forest service a discharge of obligation in the form of support of Roosevelt in this campaign."

Furthermore, it is a matter of official record, and the Taft national bureau has the document to prove it, that Senator Dixon, Mr. Roosevelt's campaign manager, is personally preparing to oppose for re-nomination in the senate of the United States, federal office holders who have openly stated they favored the re-nomination of President Taft.

"In other words, intimidation if not direct bribery, is being practiced by Mr. Roosevelt's own personal representative in his national headquarters."

SIGNS BILL APPROPRIATING MONEY TO PROTECT LEVELS

WASHINGTON, April 16—The president today signed the bill appropriating an additional $200,000 for the protection of levees on the Mississippi river and tributaries.

NEW ORLEANS, April 16—Although the general flood situation along the Mississippi south of Vicksburg has materially improved, conditions tonight in the vast territory of northern Louisiana where a dozen or more parishes are partly under from five to 10 feet of water, were steadily growing worse.

Three hundred persons were rescued today at Soudheim, and brought to the levees to await boats to take them to the emergency camps along the river.

HOME RULE BILL PASSES FIRST READING IN HOUSE

LONDON, April 16—The home rule bill passed its first reading in the house tonight by a vote of 350 to 286. The announcement of the figures was received with deafening ministerial cheers and the waving of hats and handkerchiefs.

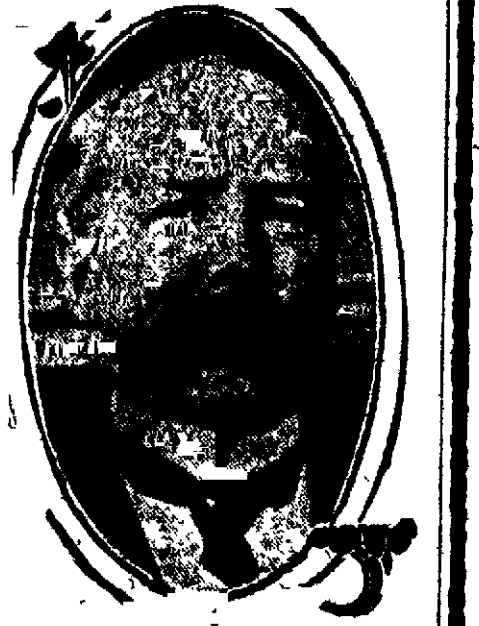

In the debate, Andrew Bonar Law, summing up for the opposition, savagely assailed both the bill and the government. The people of Ulster were ready in what they believed to be the cause of liberty and justice, to lay down their lives. In conclusion he said:

"You will not carry this bill without submitting it to the people. If you try to do so, you will succeed only in breaking the parliamentary machine. The bill has been introduced because the government is dependent upon the Irish vote. The prime minister gave a solemn pledge that he would reform the house of lords but that debt of honor must wait until he has paid his debt of shame."

HAD STATISTICS TO SHOW THAT NEW LEVIATHANS PRACTICALLY UNSINKABLE

NEW YORK, April 16—The White Star company recently issued the following statistics to show that the Olympic and the Titanic were unsinkable:

Tonnage registered	45,000
Tonnage displacement	52,000
Length over all	269 feet, 6 inches
Breadth over all	28 feet, 6 inches
Breadth over beam	24 feet, 0 inches
Height from bottom of keel to top of funnel	100 feet, 7 inches
Height of funnels above casing	9 feet, 0 inches
Height of funnels above casing	9 feet, 0 inches
Distance from top of funnel to keel	11 feet, 0 inches
Number of steel decks	11
Number of water-tight bulkheads	15
Passengers carried	2,500
Crew	800

While referring to these statistical details, it may be well to point out that the largest plates employed in the hull are 36 feet long, weighing 4 1/2 tons each, and the largest steel beam used is 22 feet long, the weight of this double beam being 4 tons. Further, the colossal rudder, which is to be operated electrically, weighs 100 tons, the anchors 15 1/2 tons each, the center (turbine) propeller 22 tons and each of the two wing propellers 8 tons each. The huge after keelson, from which are suspended the three

THE STRANGEST OF BIRDS

From Harper's Weekly.

The German emperor was lately the recipient of a pair of very curious birds from the East Indies. The species is nearly extinct and it is said that an effort will be made to prevent their becoming entirely so by enforcing the laws against hunting them. These birds always travel in pairs and are hardly ever separated. The beak of the male is short and strong, while that of the female is fine, long and curved. The male's work is to break with his strong beak the tough bark of trees in order that his mate may introduce her pointed beak into the holes dug into the trunk by insects and so extract food. When the male detects an insect haunt, he lays it bare, and the female pulls forth the prey with her beak, divides it in two, gives the male his portion and eats the other, continuing the process until both have had enough. Consequently the death of one of the other means starvation to the survivor, the female being unable to break the bark of trees and the male to take out the prey when it is exposed.

The Christian population of India now numbers nearly 4,000,000.

SOCIALISTS-57 VARIETIES

"Gentlemen who are opposed to socialism—for what reasons are now unnecessary to consider—lose no opportunity to spread the belief that there are more kinds of socialism than there are varieties of the celebrated products of Mr. Heitz. This is not so. This is the first of real socialism, the very core—public ownership of the trusts combined with public ownership of the government. As compared with this belief, all other beliefs of socialism are minor and inconsequential."

This quotation is taken from an article by Allen L. Benson in Pearson's Magazine for April.

The unifying principles of socialism, will be considered later. It is our object now to discuss the difference between the various brands of socialism—for there are differences. That some people consider these differences essential is evident from the following quotation, taken from a commencement address at Cornell University by George B. McGellan:

If you are a socialist, don't follow the lead of the flabby thinking, loose reasoning, drawing-room socialists like George Bernard Shaw, H. G. Wells and Robert Blatchford, but be straight forward enough to declare yourself with Marx and Lange and Lassalle and Roberts. They at least reasoned clearly, and addressed themselves to the intelligence.

The brand of socialism that developed out of the Communist Manifesto, issued by Marx and Engels in 1848, has been called "scientific," "historical" or "Marxian" socialism. A more appropriate designation for the Marxian theories than any of these names is "orthodox" socialism. For the teachings of Marx have become a creed to many socialists, differences of opinion in regard to the various theses of Marx have led to schisms; the orthodox socialists have thundered at the heresies of the unorthodox; the "higher criticism" of the heretical socialists has shown the fallacy of certain notions of the orthodox socialists. Today there are orthodox Marxists, revisionists, Christian socialists, Fabian socialists, State socialists, and Utopian socialists. Each one of these species of the genus socialist will be briefly characterized.

Karl Marx developed a philosophy of society and an economic theory of value, wages, interest and rent. The leading Marxian theses are: (a) That society is an evolutionary product. (b) That our whole social life, including our ideas concerning religion, art, marriage, etc., are but a reflex of past and present economic conditions. (c) That the income of the capitalist class is a surplus value that results from the fact that the owners of capital can compel the laboring class to produce more than the latter receive in wages. And (d) that class differences predetermine a class struggle which will result in the victory of the laboring class. Minor items in the Marxian theory are: That economic crises inevitably result from the fact that the laboring class is receiving less than it earns and, consequently, the phenomenon of "underconsumption" results. This means that manufacturers and merchants are unable to dispose of the goods which they have produced. That wealth and industry have become, and are becoming, more concentrated. That the laboring class is becoming oppressed and enslaved. And that there will be a catastrophe at which time the expropriated laboring class will seize the instruments of production for their own use.

HOW DOES IT AFFECT THE PEOPLE?

Many Marxian theories have been "combated" by the socialists who are called "revisionists." For instance, the explanation of crises, the theory of increasing misery and the catastrophe theory are not now generally held or considered of great importance to socialism. A few years ago there was no end of discussion between the Marxists, who are also called "impossibilists" or "revolutionists," and the revisionists, who are also called "reformists," "moderates," "possibilists" or "ministerialists." Edward Bernstein was the leading revisionist. He has made the statement: "The development and the improvement of the Marxian theory must begin with a criticism. Today the situation is such that it is possible to show anything

In France the followers of the higher criticism took the name "possibilists"; the supporters of Marx were led by Guesde and acquired the name "Guesdists"; a third element, called "Blanquists" or "syndicalists," were in favor of an immediate revolution by means of the general strike.

In Italy there is a conflict between the conservative, middle and radical sections of the socialist party, respectively called "reformists," "integralists" and "syndicalists."

In Germany, although the socialists have differences, they appear to be more united than they are in France or Italy. Robert Hunter has characterized the situation in Germany (see "Socialists at Work," page 12) as follows:

It struck me also that the party (in Germany) was to all outward appearances conservative, what I mean is that it is not uselessly offending anyone. Inside the party the leaders are extremely careful not to offend the more backward and slow-moving elements, which are perhaps as numerous in the German movement as elsewhere. The more advanced are willing to sacrifice positions which they would otherwise take or hold in order to retain the adhesion of the less revolutionary members.

The Labor Party movement in England was characterized by Engels in 1892. His characterization of this organization, which is composed of quiet, thoughtful, stolid Britishers, holds today: "It moves now and then with an over-cautious mistrust of the name of socialism, while it gradually absorbs the substance."

The other types of socialists are of less importance, both in numbers and influence, to the Marxists and revisionists. They will be considered at a later date.

OPEN PARLIAMENT

VILIFYING THE PRESIDENT.

To the Editor of The Gazette:
Representative McKinley charges that the opponents of President Taft are resorting to personal abuse. On the contrary they are avoiding important questions in order to prevent even the appearance of a personal attack. The ancient saying that "whom the gods wish to destroy they first make mad" really applies to those who are now urging the re-nomination of the president, and it is only right that some one should tell them plainly what is the principal reason why some millions of those who voted for Mr. Taft now sorrowfully say to themselves (and sometimes to others), he is no longer my leader. The opposing candidates and their managers, being good politicians, are evidently trying to avoid retaliation at the polls, hence they are silent concerning what is probably the cause of all causes of the opposition to the re-nomination of the president. One of George Macdonald's characters, when reproached with using strong language, replies, "Ye should hear what I didn't say." Permit a voter not in politics, hence not handicapped by considerations of electioneering expediency, to say some most unwelcome things that the politicians opposed to President Taft "didn't say."

We do not strenuously oppose the president's re-nomination merely because we happen to differ from him as to certain matters of economic and governmental policy. We can compromise on such questions, for it is impossible for us all to think alike. We gladly recognize the president's kindly nature and the many good things he has done, but when moral principles enter, we are not willing to indorse by our votes a wrong moral principle nor to see the Republican party defeated on a moral issue if we can prevent it.

President Taft selected as his first secretary of the interior a man who had previously acted as an attorney in certain land cases then pending before the department. This appointment gave to this attorney's official power, in the eyes of the public, the force of the locality and validity of the claims. This power he soon began to use by causing the clearing-listing of the very cases in which he had previously appeared as the attorney, and this in spite of the fact that a special examiner had already been sent into the field to examine into the facts and had reported against the regularity of the claims. It makes no difference who Ballinger was personally or what he did or did not do, we know what he tried to do. His attempt to favor his own cases would have been a gross violation of the trust Mr. Pinchot raised so loud a protest that the matter became a national scandal. The claims in question, if they were passed on favorably, would inure to the benefit of the Guggenheim-Morgan interests. What ought a president to do if he finds he has appointed a man to a position where he is using his official position to further his own cases? If, when the president found that this ostensibly ex-attorney was in reality continuing to act as an attorney in his own cases, he had pitched this misuser of his official power, neck and crop to the tender care of his Morganheim sponsors, he would have escaped from a disagreeable dilemma with credit. Instead the president stands by this attorney masquerading as a secretary and in the bitter letter he ever wrote, his misrepresents what was in reality a war against Ballinger's official action, and terms it a personal attack springing from jealousy and hatred. These are facts of record and the president is alone responsible for his course in the matter.

Here arise some important moral questions. Ought an attorney to be appointed to a position where he has power to pass on and decide his own cases?

If such a man has been appointed and begins to use his power to further his own cases, shall the president ignore such a misuse of power? Is favoritism to one who, while in office, continued to be practically an attorney, the holding of public office as a public trust?

Is such a policy an adequate protection of the rights and interests of the people of the United States?

Is this a course worthy of the dignity of the president of a great nation? Is it worthy of the majesty of the American people?

Is this sort of sense of official duty I want my president to have, mine because I vote for him and thereby indorse his acts?

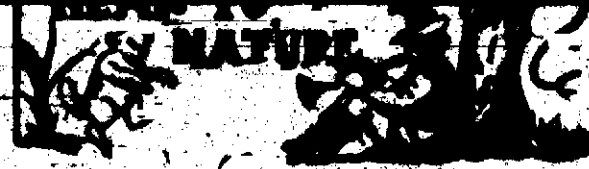

Is this the sort of spectacle we want this nation to exhibit before the wondering eyes of the world? Have we any national sense of less majesty?

Apparently for political reasons these questions are being suppressed by the politicians opposed to the president's re-nomination. If they had agitated these matters what would Mr. McKinley say? It is useless to keep silence for they will all be thrashed out if the president is re-nominated. And on these questions he is hopelessly beaten already. We can compromise on mere questions of dollars and cents but on grave questions of official propriety, official efficiency, official duty, official honor, there can be no compromise.

Mere Suggestions

By WALT MARON

If your house is tough and saddy, needing yellow paint or red; if your garden's rank and weedy, when it should be slick instead; if your housedog needs a shelter to relieve it of the mange; if the clothes line's out of kilter or there's something ails the range; if there's cordwood needing chopping, or a sidewalk to replace, don't stand on the corner yawning of the presidential race. Exercise your thews and tissues, waste no time in idle dreams; put the lid on living issues and forget the Vital Themes. Foolish mouths, like active craters, fill with noise the whole outdoors; but the wise man plants his taters and attends to other chores. Then when winter sends its screamers in the line of storm and snow, and the hungry Vital Themes wring their hands and wail in woe, he who labored while the riot of the blizzard tongues was rife, sits at home in peace and quiet, settles accounts with his knife. Do not rear and bawl your breechin' over questions of misrule; rake the yard and paint the kitchen, try and manure your mule. If you'll dodge the Living Issue, shake the Vital Theme today, no one on the street will miss you, and you'll put up far more hay. (Copyright, 1912, by George Matthew Adams.)

There must be some flaw in the argument that has convinced you; so many refuse to accept it.

The best thing of an inexpensive kind is almost always better than a cheap thing of a more expensive class.

Things which appear exactly the same on the surface are often entirely different when you look into them closely. For instance, knowing how to spend money and knowing how to buy, might appear to be the same thing, but they are entirely different. Every woman knows how to do the first; one in a hundred knows how to do the second. And yet, knowing how to buy wisely is one of the most important divisions in woman's great science of homemaking. I heard an investigator of financial conditions assert that women spend over three-fourths of all the money that is earned in the middle and lower classes. I think how important it is that they should know how to spend it wisely. Volumes might be written on this subject, but I don't know enough to write them. I just want to bring home to you one principle of wise buying with which I have recently been impressed and which I stated above, namely—the best thing of an inexpensive kind is almost always better than a cheap thing of a more expensive class.

Nine years ago two young girls who were chums were married at about the same time. These young couples had nearly the same amount of money to spend, and many of their household furnishings were similar. But in the matter of beds they disagreed. One girl was determined to have brass beds, and since she did not have enough money to buy a brass bed, she bought a cheap one. The other girl said, "I would rather have a thoroughly good white bed than a cheap brass one," and forthwith put about the same amount which her friend had invested into the most attractive and well-made white beds that could be bought. Today one girl has a dainty white bed which looks as fresh and attractive as when she bought it, while the other has a pair of tarnished and tawdry brass beds which spoil the appearance of her whole chamber.

It is better to buy good oak than cheap mahogany; a first-class cotton dress than a cheap silk one.

Good maulin or scrim curtains are infinitely preferable to hangings of cheap lace.

First-class cretonne is better than fourth-class tapestry.

It is infinitely more satisfactory to pay 50 cents for the best of silk hose stockings than for the cheap grade of silk hose.

Good lamb will give you more nutriment and satisfaction for your money than cheap steak.

Indeed, in every department of buying, the housewife will find this a safe principle, and will do well not to let herself be beguiled from it by the long-winded saleswoman who offers a better class and more showy than she can really afford. At first she may think she is getting a bargain in the cheap expensive thing. In the end she will find out her mistake.

FIRST AID TO INJURED HEARTS

By Laura Jean Libbey

UNSUSPECTED INFLUENCES

(Copyright, 1912, by Laura Jean Libbey)

That love does not always find smooth sailing, we are reluctantly bound to admit. It must not be supposed that a lover is really landed, even though he has declared his affection and named the day. When a lover has given cold without any strong reason, in nine times out of 10, it is unsuspected influences that cause the coolness.

No matter how loyal a young man may imagine himself to be to his sweetheart, he should not license himself to take a sidestep, flirting with some other pretty young woman, thinking no one will ever be the wiser. Placing himself constantly in the other woman's presence, he commences to draw comparisons. He becomes infatuated, and his visits to his betrothed gradually lessen. Meanwhile the sweetheart has thought over everything that has been said or done, and fails to find a reason for his conduct.

As first she is too high spirited to confide in her family, she spurs her grief in secret. At last the young man confides his dilemma to the other woman. She is quick to find a solution to the problem. She suggests: "It is easy to get up a little difference and to break off in that way." She lays the plan of procedure, and he is so blinded by his infatuation for her that honor is dimmed and conscience is forgotten.

A spirited sweetheart can hold out against the lover who seems bent upon making himself disagreeable and in finding fault with what she says and what she doesn't say, what she does and what she doesn't do—when he shows by every act and deed that he is dissatisfied with existing conditions. He seems to be trying in every way possible to urge her on to dismiss him.

When a girl realizes that this state of affairs has come to pass she should not seek to hold her lover. If the other hands have wandered away from each other, the hands never should clasp at the altar and take on vows which both know are untrue. If unsuspected influences are capable of changing affections, marriage would be a calamity—a torture instead of a blessing.

It is only the man who cannot be influenced by any other woman on earth who is worth giving the faith of a lifetime. Once in a while there may be reasons which change a man's heart for his sweetheart. He may find out that she is fickle and not at all the idealization which he fell in love with.

A woman always knows when it is her own fault that her influence over her lover is on the wane and his admiration for her is on the decline. A great deal of time and unhappiness might be saved if both would only be frank with each other and confess at once when they experience a change of heart. It is only putting off the evil day when they attempted to fool each other.

The good, true-hearted, discarded sweetheart usually is the last to discover that the breaking off is a case of unsuspected outside influence. Her dearest friend whom he has met may turn out to be the unsuspected rival. It is not always a stranger who is the cause of separating lovers. The woman with whom he is thrown in contact most often decides a man's fate.

ANSWERS

HE KISSES HER PHOTOGRAPH

"Dear Miss Libbey: My employer is a young married man, and the other day when I was showing him some of my photo postals, he took one and put it in his vest pocket. Of course, I expected him to give it right back, but he wouldn't. Since then I have repeatedly asked him for it in an earnest way, but he says he wants to keep it. I have noticed him kissing it several times. Do you think he loves me? And how shall I get back my picture?"

"Ask the man in a dignified way for the picture, and I am sure he will return it to you. Insist that he do so. It is a weak specimen of both employer and married man, and a girl is unfortunate to have to be associated with him. Look about and see if you can get another position."

IS HE A FLIRT?

"Dear Miss Libbey: I am a girl of 18 and am deeply in love with a man six years my senior. We have not seen each other for nearly a year, but have corresponded, steadily during that time. My parents greatly object to my having anything to do with him. They say he is nothing but a flirt, and only wants to make a fool of me, but I do not agree with my parents in this, as I hate a flirt. He writes to other girls, but he says it is only for friendship. What shall I do?"

"You had better mind your parents. The fellow does not seem to be really interested in you, and he does seem to live up to the reputation your parents give him."

SLIGHT DIFFICULTY WITH DAN

"Dear Miss Libbey: I am having some slight difficulties with 'Dan.' I but know how. First, he is entirely fitting and proper for my lady friend to call me up at the office, and during my busiest hours, when it is not absolutely necessary? And, second, is it showing affable and polite manners for me to offer to escort her to and from certain destinations, at which places my presence is not desired? Or is it

IN THE EARLY DAYS

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

APRIL 17, 1912.

The last meeting of the old city council and the first one of the new was held in the court chamber, Mayor France giving up office to D. W. Robinson, his successor.

The musical people of the city enjoyed a concert at the opera house by Stameny, the celebrated violinist, and his company.

A jockey club had been organized at Gunnison City and a mile track was being built.

Four burglaries were reported to the police. The aggregate loss was quite small and the work was unscientific.

quite the contrary? And just one more: I'm doing right in correcting her in grammar and English when listening to her 'chat.' She has had a fairly good education, as far as I know, but yet her vocabulary, augmentation seemingly is being ignored; for, instead of making use of certain words which would fully express her meaning, she gives the work of a few words to almost a paragraph. And you know how embarrassing it is to flatter one's self on one's knowledge—and I have made a practice, very near, to 'stick in my foot' as some say, but of late have come to the conclusion that I am making a great mistake, especially as the girl does not like it, but which as yet she has not mentioned. I assure you I will value your reply, and I thank you in advance for whatever advice or suggestion you may see fit to give me.

DAN'S PUPIL.
No! It is bad form for your girl friends to call you up during business hours. If you know that your presence is not desired you'd better keep away from the place. It is decidedly ill bred to correct another's grammar, no matter how faulty it is. Your own is far from perfect, as you express it in your letter. I quite agree with your decision in regard to yourself. Reform.

SHALL SHE WRITE?
Dear Miss Libbey: I am a young woman of 28 who has been going with a teacher, the teacher in the same school that I do. Now, he is going away to some distant town, and I don't ask me to write to him. Shall I broach the subject first, or wait and see if he writes? ELSIE F.

No, Elsie, if he wants to write to you, he will ask permission to do so. Don't put yourself in the wrong position by requesting him to write you.

THAT'S NO WAY TO ACT.
"Dear Miss Libbey: We are two young girls who have recently moved to this city. There is some class to us, but, as we haven't been here long, we haven't had a chance to get acquainted with the young men in town. The other night, after attending a 5-cent show, we dropped into a restaurant to get something to drink, and as we came out of the door two rather nice looking young men were waiting for us and asked to take us home. As it was about 12 o'clock and a beautiful moonlight night we decided to let them, but on the way home we soon discovered that they were not the right kind of men for us to associate with. What shall we do? They spoke of meeting us often as we come from work. Would it be right for us not to speak when we see them again? Please answer at once, for we are puzzled to know what to do. GRACE AND MONIE."

O my! I am so distressed to hear of two girls acting as you do. Of course the fellows weren't of the right sort. The right sort would think of having anything to do with girls who go to restaurants late at night and order drinks. Both of you will later surely regret such actions. Don't be guilty of acting like that again.

SHT DIDN'T WANT HIM.
"Dear Miss Libbey: I am a young man of 25, good looking, have plenty of money, a good education and dress nicely. I kept company with a young lady for about a year, and at that time thought she was the sweetest girl that ever lived, but one evening, as we were strolling in a park corner at her home I popped the question, but what do you think she did? She turned up her nose and left the room, and of course, I had to leave also. I haven't heard from her or seen her since, as she left the city shortly afterward. That wasn't the only girl that I have popped the question to. I have asked several others; but of no use. If at first you don't succeed, try, try again. Girls like to keep company with the men just to have them spend their leisure time showing them a good time, but they are too independent, as most of them get just as high a salary as the average man gets and are capable of taking care of themselves, so that is what we lose out. Now, if there is any nice young girl among our readers I would surely like to meet her. Miss Dolly, I read your letter the other evening, and if we could arrange a meet, somehow or other—probably through your brother Ralph—I should like it very much. BILL W.

I am sorry, Bill, but I can't give you Dolly's address.

SHALL SHE ASK HIM TO CALL.
"Dear Miss Libbey: Do you think it is proper for a young lady to ask a young man to call on her after he has seen her home several times, or do you think he ought to ask if he can call? RAE."

It is the woman's place to extend the invitation.

STUDY YOUR LESSONS.
"Dear Miss Libbey: I am very pleased about a question which I was asked you. I am in love with two boys. They are both in love with me. I am very attentive, but, I do not pay much attention to me. He has a name on all of his things and says that he loves me, but I am in doubt as he pays quite a lot of attention to other girls. I never openly said that he loved me, but he is very nice to me and never pays much attention to other girls. Which one do you think I should ask to call? ABBY G."

I can't tell you, Abby. You are young to be thinking about love, anyway. Study your lessons!

THEY'RE BOTH IN BUSINESS.
"Dear Miss Libbey: I have been corresponding with a lady of about 18. She has been wanting information about her uncle. I wrote her that if the man she wanted was not her uncle, I did not live here. She still persists in corresponding. She sent me her photo and, in return, I sent her a photo of me. I got information from her niece, who lives in the same town. Niece tells me she never knew her kinsman company with any fellows. She has a good business, and I have business, but not very well to do. The lady has sent me a Xmas present. What would you advise me to do, as I think a great deal of her by her looks and reputation? JACK."

Better go and call on her, Jack.

HE MUST DIG
He wanted a job, and like everybody else.

He wanted a good one, you know. Where his clothes would not soil, his hands would keep clean.

And the salary mustn't be low. He asked for a man, but they gave him a speck.

And he half turned away with a sigh. But he entered his mind, and when the spade—he dug!

He worked with a will that is bound to succeed.

And the months and the years go along. The way it was rough and the labor was hard.

But his heart he kept filled with song. Some teased him and sneered at him, but he was plugged.

Just as hard as he ever could dig. Their words never seemed to disturb him a bit—as he dug.

The day came at last when they called for the spade.

And gave him a pen in its place. The joy of achievement was sweet to his taste.

And victory shown in his face. We can't always get what we hope for at first.

Success cuts many queer figs. But one thing is sure, a man will succeed—if he digs.

77 NEW MEMBERS;
50 SINCE JAN. 1

The membership of the Chamber of Commerce continues to grow. Twenty-two applications were presented and approved at the meeting of the committee, held yesterday noon at luncheon, at the Aracia hotel. This makes a total of 50 applications secured since the first of the year, most of which have come in as a result of the careful, systematic work inaugurated and carried out by the committee with the cooperation of a large number of members of the Chamber of Commerce.

Reports were received yesterday from a number of the special subcommittees, as well as from individual members of the committee. A committee on delinquent members has been appointed, and this body presented its first report. It has for its special business consideration of all members who may fall in arrears. Its members are C. B. Lauterman, A. C. Denholt, W. C. Jones, Miles Cook and J. R. Taggart.

The committee on number of membership, of which J. M. K. Ferriday is chairman, also presented a report which was made a special order of business for the next meeting of the committee next Tuesday. The other members of this committee are: B. G. Robbins, G. H. Logan, E. C. Davis and E. W. Kent.

Chairman Arthur Cornforth, who, with D. J. Funkelstein and L. G. Carpenter, composes the committee on resolutions, also presented a report as to matters considered and acted upon by his body.

MUSICAL TEA MONDAY IN AID OF BETHEL HOSPITAL

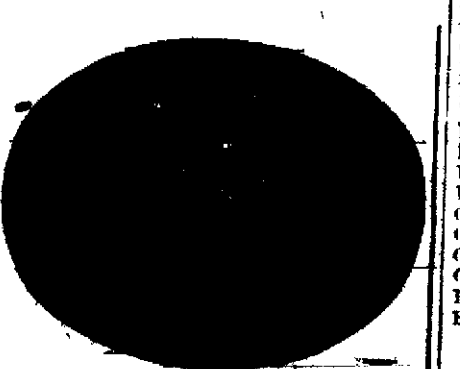

The musical tea to be given next Monday afternoon at the Aracia hotel by the local board of managers in aid of Bethel hospital, will be one of the most attractive social events of the season. Mrs. John Speed Tucker will be the vocalist. Mrs. George M. Howe will give the violin numbers and Miss Charlotte Rhea James will give the piano numbers. Miss Evelyn Lennox will be the accompanist. The program will begin at 3:30 o'clock, with a trio for violin, cello and piano by the Misses Marion, Catherine and Lucy Lloyd, and the trio will play later while the tea is in progress.

The program follows:
Preludium..... George Saint-George
Scherzando..... George Saint-George
Allegretto..... George Saint-George
Song, "When Spring Comes Laughing"..... Arthur Froie
Violin, "Reverie"..... Vieuxtemps
Song cycle, "A Lover in Damascus"..... Benberg
Piano, "Rhapsodie in D flat"..... Domanyi
Song, "Amie-Moi"..... Benberg
Violin, "Berceuse"..... Benberg
Ecossaise..... Ludwig Schwan
Humoresque..... Kocian
Piano, Etude in E flat..... Liszt
Song, "Spring Flowers"..... Heinecke
(Violin obligato)

OFFICERS REELECTED

O. H. Shoup of this city was re-elected president of the Midway Oil company, at a recent meeting of the stockholders. The other officers re-elected are: W. J. Cheley, assistant general manager; J. L. TATT MEN WILL BE IN CONTROL SECOND CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION TODAY

Two Delegates and Alternates to Be Elected to Republic in National Gathering

The congressional convention of the Second congressional district will meet at the El Paso hotel this afternoon at 2 o'clock, to elect two delegates and two alternates to the national Republican convention in Chicago, June 18. At least 400 of the 549 delegates will be present, and the Taft and Roosevelt factions will be divided in about the same proportion as in the state convention; that is, two to one.

Although nothing definite has been decided, there is much talk among the Taft delegates of electing Senator Casimiro Barcia of Trinidad and W. W. Calky of Florence as national delegates. Other prominent Taft men named are R. L. Shaw of Buena Vista, E. T. Elliott of Del Norte, R. H. Graham of Idaho Springs and Charles A. Crozier of Salida. It is probable that the alternates will be chosen from this list.

Not counting the El Paso county delegation of 50, there were only about 75 or 100 delegates in the city last night, and the Taft men postponed their organization until this morning, when the large delegations from Pueblo, Huerfano, Las Animas, Delta and other counties will arrive. National delegates and alternates as well as the chairman and secretary of the convention, will be named at the caucus this morning, and the state, in all probability, will be elected by the methods used in the state convention. Resolutions probably will be passed endorsing Taft and his administration, and the delegates will be instructed for him.

No Contests.

None of the 46 counties represented in the convention sent contesting delegations.

It is probable that the Roosevelt men will go into the contesting as in the recent state convention. They will put up their convention chairman and secretary. It is thought, and will nominate delegates to the national convention. They will also probably submit a minority resolution endorsing Roosevelt.

The El Paso county delegates, who are pledged to support Roosevelt as a result of the recent preferential primaries here, held a caucus in the parlor of the Antlers, last night, to decide upon a plan of campaign. Robert Ellison of this city was elected chairman of the delegation.

Robert Ellison, W. C. Robinson, O. E. Collins, W. L. Strachan and Philip B. Stewart, all of Colorado Springs, were elected to carry out the plan of campaign on the floor of the convention this afternoon.

The convention will be called to order by Chairman Robert Kerr of the congressional committee and the first order of business will be the selection of a temporary chairman and secretary, and the adoption of the permanent roll call. It is probable that the list prepared by Secretary Arthur Cornforth will be authorized, since there are no contesting delegations.

El Paso Delegation.

The El Paso county delegates are as follows:
R. E. Ellison, L. E. Lawton, J. P. Jackson, Prof. G. M. Howe, W. C. Robinson, Joseph Strong, Frank E. Wulf, D. S. Gilmore, E. B. Hoeman, W. C. Bishop, Adna W. Moore, T. P. Barger, E. C. LOCAL REALTY MEN INDORSE MEASURE Will Support Proposed Bill to Provide Funds for State Bureau of Immigration

At a special meeting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms, yesterday afternoon, the real estate division of that body formally indorsed the proposed bill to provide funds for the support of the state bureau of immigration. The association also agreed to undertake to secure not less than 1,500 names as signatures to a petition to initiate the bill.

C. C. Williams of Denver, representing the Colorado Realty Dealers' association, which is favoring the measure, appeared before the local association and presented the merits of the bill. He explained that it was the intention of the state association to initiate a constitutional amendment, to be voted upon at the fall election, putting the state bureau of immigration in the second class instead of the fourth among state institutions, and giving it a permanent annual appropriation equal to about $21,000 a year. This fund is to be secured through a special state tax of not more than one-sixteenth of a mill, to be levied by the state for the special purpose of advertising Colorado.

"There is no apparent question as to the need for such a measure," said Mr. Williams. "Every other western state is outstripping Colorado today in the race for development and settlement. The other states are spending money for publicity and advertising purposes. Colorado has none to spend. The last legislature gave the state bureau of immigration two appropriations, one for salaries of about $16,000 for two years, and the other for publicity and advertising of $24,000. The first appropriation comes in the first class, along with all the other salaried offices, and is being paid regularly. The publicity fund, however, comes in the fourth class, for which there is no cash in the state treasury, and has never been paid. As a result the bureau has a corps of salaried workers who are accomplishing little.

Cites Results of Publicity.

"The results of good work in general state publicity are well known. During the one year that the state bureau was in active operation, prior to the last legislature, it is shown by actual record that $100 was brought into the state for every dollar spent. More than 2,000 families came to Colorado through the efforts of the bureau. In that one year, and the actual known investment in Colorado properties from the same cause was more than $2,000,000. For a year and a half, however, the Colorado bureau has been largely idle, while Wyoming, Utah, Nevada and other western states each have been spending tens of thousands of dollars a year. California is expending $500,000 every year for publicity purposes, besides a special expense of more than $20,000,000 for her 1912 exposition. California is getting results, and so can Colorado."

The State Realty Dealers' association plans to put a petition in the hands of every real estate man in Colorado. A total of 15,000 names are needed to initiate the measure, and the whole number must be in the hands of the secretary of state not later than July 3. It is proposed practically to close the campaign, however, by June 1, and the Colorado Springs men have promised their full support to the work.

Mr. Williams asked also for a small appropriation to assist in carrying on the publicity work of the campaign, but this question was laid over until the next regular meeting of the association, May 14. At that time the proposed bill will be made a special order of business, and Mr. Williams will be asked to attend and to talk to the members about it.

At a meeting in Denver Monday, which was attended by the executive heads of all of the commercial bodies of the city, the new measure was approved without a dissenting voice, and the Denver bodies pledged themselves to secure not less than 5,000 signatures to the petition to initiate. Denver also will contribute to the publicity fund being raised by the state realty dealers' organization.

GIVES BOND FOR SUPPORT OF WIFE'S AGED FATHER

The affairs of the Thomas Campbell family were aired in Justice Dunnington's court yesterday, when Mrs. Campbell was tried on a charge of nonsupport preferred by her sister, Mrs. Mary Thornton, widow of New York. It was alleged that Mrs. Campbell had turned her aged father, Joseph Ryan Thornton, who is mentally irresponsible, out of the house and refused to provide for his care and support.

Mr. Campbell signed a bond of $500 that his wife will see that her father was cared for during the coming year, at a cost not to exceed $40 a month. Campbell is interested in irrigated lands in the San Luis valley.

BAZAAR FOR CHILDREN'S WARD BETHEL HOSPITAL

A bazaar for the benefit of the children's ward of Bethel hospital will be given next Saturday at the San Luis school, beginning at 2 o'clock, by children who were members of Mrs. Frank Hale Touret's Lenten sewing class. The children have prepared a variety of articles for the sale, and there will be home-made candy. Tea and cake will be served. They are hoping to start a fund to be used for the permanent maintenance of a ward for children apart from their elders. The ladies assisting in arrangements for the bazaar are Mrs. Touret, Mrs. James F. Burns, Mrs. Godfrey Kissel and Mrs. John Armit. Prominent women generally are much interested in the plan and will largely patronize the children.

STOCKS ADVANCE

Mary McKinney stock advanced 1 1/2 cents on the Mining Stock exchange yesterday, selling at 6 1/2 cents. El Paso sold at 5 1/2, and El Paso gained to 5 3/4.

CALL IN ALL SEED FUND PLEDGES NOW

Approximately three fourths of the seed fund now has been raised. Subscriptions amounting to $300 were secured yesterday, bringing the total amount above $7,400.

One subscription of $25 was made at The Gazette office, when a subscription blank has been placed on file. An anonymous subscription of $200 was another feature of the day's work.

The finance committee held a meeting yesterday afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce rooms, on call of Chairman Leonard E. Curtis and received reports from John Lennox, chairman of the trustees who have just returned from another trip to Calhan for the distribution of seed.

In view of the necessity of providing the seed and seed at once the committee decided to issue a call for all subscriptions.

It further decided to take up the campaign by letter and by additional personal work, and a number of letters will be sent out today and tomorrow to those whom it is believed will be interested in assisting in the work of the Chamber of Commerce to secure relief in the form of seed and seed for the worthy farmers in eastern El Paso and adjacent counties.

According to reports received from

The Kitchen Floor

Most housekeepers would prefer to keep the kitchen floor unadorned and "in the white," were it not for the labor of keeping such a floor in satisfactory condition. However, the work of scrubbing will be lightened and milk white floors can be easily attained by dissolving in each pailful of warm water a tablespoon of Gold Dust washing powder. If scrubbed this way each work old stains that seem to be around into the wood will soon disappear altogether. This is also excellent for scrubbing stone steps and woodwork.

But progress has not her stamp of disapproval on such backwardness and brought forth the steel pen.

Likewise she has disapproved of roasting coffee in the home oven and each year brought forth a more and more scientific and exact method of brewing and roasting.

The Colorado cure, the fresh, daily dry coffee roast, handling from roaster to user through air and dust-tight tubes and bins—these methods give you a richer flavor, and ten more cups to every pound.

Denver, the fund being raised here is slightly in excess of the amount which, to date, has been subscribed for this purpose in the capital city. The Colorado Springs committee are determined to secure the $10,000, because of the absolute necessity of securing this amount to care for the section east of this city.
